COTTON WORM RAVAGES REPORTED IN MORGAN COUNTY AREAS

State Committee To Check Ballots August 28

CALL FOR MEETING IS ISSUED BY EVINS COMMITTEE CHIEF

'Any Other Business' May Be Taken Up at the Session

ONLY ONE RACE STILL IS CLOSE

Brandon - Manning Almost Tied For Secretary

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The state democratic executiv committee has been called to meet in the senate chamber at the state capital in Montgomery August 28 when the vote in the primary of Tuesday will be canvassed and tabulated and choices of the people declared the nominees of the party.

Notice of the meeting was sent out Saturday morning by Judge R. B. Evins, chairman of the state democratic executive committee. Judge Evins, in the notice said the committee would take up any other business which might be at the meeting and that all candidates are invited to attend.

County chairmen, according to the notice, are requested by law to certify the returns from their separate counties to the chairman of the state committee within ten days after the canvass by the county committees.

With all returns practically in, the state committee no doubt will declare Hugo L. Black is the democratic nominee for United States senator, Colonel Bibb Graves for governor, W. O. Davis for lieutenant governor, W. B. Allgood for state treasurer, S. H. Blan for state auditor, Charlie C. McCall for attorney general, Fitzhugh Lee and Frank Morgan for members of the Alabama public service commission and James Rice for judge of the court of appears.

The official count probably will have to determine whether Brandon or Manning will be the choice for secretary of state. Brandon has 48,585 first choice votes and 2,302 seconds, while Manning has 45, 916 firsts and 4,540 second choice votes, a race said to be too close for anything but an official count by the state committee.

B. M. Miller and W. H. Thomas are leading in the race for associate justice of the supreme court, with Joel Brown running close second.

Hearing Delayed On Guardianship

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Hearing on a petition for a guardian for W. E. Manley, indicted Atlanta banker, set for today, was postponed by order of Judge Humphries of the superior court. The court order was on application of Solicitor John A. Boyin, who asked for a writ of prohibition delaying the guardianship hearing until September 4, two days after receivers of the Bankers Trust company of Atlanta, of which Manley is president, will be given a hearing in federal court on their petition to require Manley to turn over to them alleged assets of $500,000.

Judge Humphries will determine next Tuesday, August 17, whether the writ of prohibition will be granted to delay the guardianship hearing until September 4. Manley, who was indicted yesterday by a grand jury on a charge of felony in connection with the closing recently of the Farmers and Traders Bank of Atlanta, was under $5,000 bond today.

MAIL CAR ROBBED BY PAIR OF YEGGS

Clerks Held At Bay With Revolvers; Letters Rifled

RAWLINGS, Wyo., Aug. 14—(AP)—Two men early today held up and robbed the mail car of the Union Pacific train number five, Chicago to Portland, Ore., between Rawlings and Wamsutter. The loss has not yet been determined by the railway mail authorities.

The men boarded the train at Rawlings and while it was speeding west entered the mail coach where, at the point of revolvers, they bound two mail clerks and then rifled several letter pouches.

Then, evidently by an arrangement with accomplices, the semaphore signal at Wamsutter was changed so that the train slowed and the two robbers jumped off the mail coach, while the train was moving at 15 miles an hour.

Wamsutter is 41 miles west of Rawlings, but the robbery was not discovered until it was noticed the two mail clerks, A. J. Miller and Jack Madigan did not deliver at Rock Springs.

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 14.—Twenty-three pouches of mail were opened by the Union Pacific mail train bandits, who held up and robbed train number five in Wyoming early today. The robbers threw bonds and other securities on the floor and took only money and jewelry.

This information came from H. A. Connett, superintendent of the western division of the Union Pacific at Green River in a long-distance telephone conversation.

Superintendent Connett said the robbers appeared to be experts and seemed to know the practice of the train crew and the movements of mail clerks.

UNDERTOW TAKES 2 KIDDIES LIVES

Bathers Are Drowned In Surf Near Florida City

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Thelma Goolsby, 13, and her brother, Clarence Goolsby, 19, were drowned in the surf at Pompano beach last night, when an undertow carried them off shore.

Several persons were attracted by the cry of the bathers but attempts to rescue failed. The bodies of both were recovered shortly afterward.

The victims were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Isan Goolsby, who arrived at Pompano beach from Allgood, Tenn., several months ago.

ALBANY COUNCIL TO ELECT POLICE CHIEF HEREAFTER

Ordinance Is Adopted Changing Method Of Selection

MOORE NAMED TRAFFIC 'COP'

Council Encourages Coming Here Of Chautauqua

The chief of police of Albany, under an ordinance adopted last night by the city council, hereafter will be elected by the council, instead of by the voters-at-large.

The ordinance providing for election of the principal police office by the council has been before the council sometime and has been the subject of interesting discussions, both pro and con.

Under the operation of the old ordinances, the chief of police was elected by the voters at the same time the citizens cast their ballots for mayor and for members of the board of aldermen. The fire chief, city clerk and other municipal officers were elected by the council.

Under the new provisions the chief of police will occupy the same status as the other appointed officers and he will be selected by the incoming council at the time the aldermen organize the municipality's personal staff.

At the regular meeting of the council last night, several other items of business were transacted. The council encouraged the coming of a Chautauqua here in September under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' Association.

W. P. Moore was elected traffic officer to succeed M. J. Mitchell, who resigned recently to accept a similar position in Sheffield.

Lacking Portion Required Amount

First Methodist church, Decatur, will not announce building plans for the proposed Sunday school addition until the required three-fourths of the necessary amount of money in the expenditure is subscribed, it was stated today. It was likewise stated that the goal is yet to be reached, the committees continuing to drive toward the final goal.

ANDREWS PREPARES TO SET UP ENFORCEMENT PLANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of the prohibition officers, returned to his desk today and prepared to set up immediately the machinery to carry out the rum smuggling agreement he worked out with British officials on his mission to England.

Enthusiastic over results of his trip abroad and what he regards as prospects for improving prohibition enforcement at home, Andrews gave assurance that he is not contemplating early retirement from office.

"It will take sometime to complete the organization of the prohibition forces and to work out the arrangements which I have just negotiated.

"I will be here for sometime."

He added that he expected Congress to do its part and give the legislation which he has asked and which he believes is necessary.

Mr. Andrews indicated he would ask Harry J. Anslinger, American consol at Bahama island, to take charge of the organization of division of foreign control, which he will set up to enforce the terms of the new American-British agreement.

With the co-operation of the state and commerce departments, he said, he expects to use members of their organization, now stationed abroad, in the work of his divisions.

In discussing the conditions at home, he declared he hoped during the coming year to concentrate on liquor traffic and local law enforcement. This program will be considered at a conference of all the division administrators about September 10.

In this connection he said he expected to name about five zone supervisors to act as liaison officers between the various administrators and himself and have direction over prohibition, customs and the coast guard activities in their districts.

NORTH ALABAMA MEN SANG THEIR POLITICAL DIRGE

Patterson Gets Six, Carmichael Six, McDowell Three

NOMINEE HAS POOR SHOWING

Morgan And Colbert Men Slash Into Own Camps

A. G. Patterson and A. H. Carmichael sang their own political dirge in Alabama when they remained in the race to whack half and half in North Alabama.

With sixty percent of the voting strength north of Calera the two distinguished North Alabamaians were unable to affect any sort of agreement and they both went to their doom of balloting vieing in popularity in their home sections.

Andrew Patterson carried six North Alabama counties: Marshall, Cullman, Morgan, Etowah, Cherokee and DeKalb. Carmichael hoisted his standard over Lauderdale, Colbert, Madison, Limestone, Franklin and Marion. Charles McDowell found a victory of ballots in Lawrence, Jackson and Winston.

In seven other counties considered in North Alabama, Carmichael carried Blount with Patterson second and took Fayette with McDowell second. Patterson carried St. Clair with McDowell second.

Bibb Graves who won the Democratic nomination took Walker county with Carmichael second, Lamar with Patterson next, Calhoun with Patterson a bare 100 votes behind and the gathered Clebourne with McDowell second.

Out of 47 complete counties Andrew Patterson took 11 of that total carrying in :Baldwin with 398, Cherokee 989, Clark 1535, Clay 908, Cullman 1056, DeKalb 1523, Etowah 1797, Marshall 2013, Morgan 2259, Shelby 666, St. Clair 600.

The political swan song of the two North Alabama candidates was sung right at home, Patterson and Carmichael splitting hairs in the Valley counties to lose to a more formidable foe piling up heavy leads in south Alabama.

In Jefferson county where the issue was long in doubt Graves finally prevailed with a scant lead over Carmichael of 197 votes. Counting second choice ballots Andrew G. Patterson who trailed on the first count, shot within 300 of Bibb Graves for the Jefferson county choice. Patterson received 3-314 second choice votes and added to his 6200 first choice placed him within touching distance of the leader. A total of 29000 votes were cast in Jefferson, the greatest voting area in the state.

Had either Carmichael or Patterson pulled out of the race things would have fared better for the North Alabama interests that would have centered upon one candidate and probably swept him to victory over all opposition.

WAREHOUSE SPACE FOR COTTON TO BE PROVIDED LOCALLY

Two Additions and 1 New Building To Be Erected

WORK STARTS ON STRUCTURE

Davis & Company Is Constructing New Warehouse

Despite the fact that the season probably will be unusually late in this section, the Albany-Decatur market is being prepared to care for a record number of bales this year.

Work has been started by Davis and company on a new cotton warehouse to be erected, facing the Louisville and Nashville tracks, between Moulton street and Gordon Drive, just west of the railroad. This building will be completed by the time cotton begins coming in, according to present plans of the company.

Hughes and Tidwell, well known local business firm, is adding to the capacity of its warehouse on Moulton street, just east of the Louisville and Nashville tracks. The addition will nearly double the capacity of the warehouse, it was said.

The Union compress company, recent purchasers of the compress here, is spending a large sum in construction of additional warehousing facilities which will increase the capacity of cotton storage space there about one third.

The management of the compress recently announced it expected to increase the cotton handled at the local "press" from about 80,000 bales annually to about 125,000 bales annually. The Union company is one of the largest compress companies in the South.

These additions to warehousing space here furnish further indication of the increasing importance of Albany-Decatur as a cotton concentration center.

FORD URGES THAT FARMERS TAKE AN IMMEDIATE STEP

Many Morgan Areas Are Included In The Reports

LAWRENCE ALSO IS IN DANGER

County Agent Says No Damage Has Been Done

Cotton worms are appearing in great numbers in Morgan and Lawrence county areas and threaten destruction, according to a warning issued today by J. C. Ford, county farm agent.

No damage has been done yet, according to Mr. Ford, but the worm must be checked at once else pending disaster may become a reality to Morgan and Lawrence county cotton yields.

"I have seen enough worms in some fields to totally destroy the yield if they are permitted to live" declared Mr. Ford, in talking of the urgent need for immediate correction of the condition.

Worms have been reported in the Falkville, Danville, Florette, and Somerville areas, some few near Fairview and in a good many places in Lawrence county, decleared the farm agent in his request to The Daily today that farmers be acquainted with the actual conditions.

Explains Remedy

Mr. Ford, in issuing his warning, explained the methods to be used by the farmer in checking the pest.

"I suggest that every farmer inspect the rankest growing cotton daily for the next week. If worms are found in any considerable numbers they should be poisoned at the ratio of four to five pounds to the acre. It is best to apply with a dust gun. A hand duster will dust two rows at a time with a slight drift of the wind. It is better to apply late in the afternoon or at night. If no dust gun is available then the poison can be shaken through a flour sack, or any other kind of sack or bag. When shaken it is best to mix two pounds of low grade flour or lime to each pound of poison," was the advice of the farm agent.

"Anybody finding these worms will kindly report it to me or to the Albany-Decatur Daily, that we might know how much calcium arsenate to buy," was the final message of Mr. Ford to the legions of farmers in this and Lawrence counties who are now facing the danger of having cotton acreage stripped by the inroads of the pest.

Establishments in Albany-Decatur are carrying a small supply of calcium arsenate, the poison recommended by the county farm agent to end the pest ravage.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926, by The Star Co., For Albany-Decatur Daily).

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

THE letter that Clemenceau sent to President Coolidge expressed no high opinion of the United State's attitude on war debts. The old French Tiger is fighting for his country and uses the weapons at hand.

FOUR YEARS AGO, when he wrote an introduction for his book called "industrial America in the World War," Clemenceau thought well of the United States and what it had done for France. Read this extract from Mr. Clemenceau's own writing.

"Meanwhile, here are some eloquent figures. In eighteen months the United States sent us 5,000,000 tons of food supplies and 5,000,000 tons of war material. The steel they sent us represented the raw material for 160,000,000 "76" shells. The foodstuffs they sent us fed 12,000,000 Frenchmen for a year and a half. If this help had not been forthcoming, our army could not have held."

When Clemenceau wrote that, Europe had not yet changed Uncle Sam's name to "Uncle Shylock."

THIS news from Oxford will please bald men, and shock anti-evolutionists. The strength that barbarians used growing hair on the head and other parts of the body, is transferred to the brain as hair disappears.

When men climbed down from trees (The Oxford scientists say it, we don't), they were all hairy. In the time of Adam and Eve hair had disappeared to such an extent that Esau's hairiness seemed strange.

Crop Conditions Good Generally

Crop conditions in the Tennessee Valley generally are very good, it was stated today by T. L. Baker, agricultural observer on his return from a visit to Franklin and Marion counties. Mr. Baker spoke highly of the conditions in Morgan county and believed that one of the best yields in years is the outlook for the farmer in both cotton and corn areas.

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

By J. N. ATKINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

VIENNA.—Handel's opera "Julius Caesar" has been presented for the first time here. The opera, although one of his earlier works, has had an instant success and will be given several times in the program of the Burg Theatre next autumn. It is musically captivating in its arias and choruses and has great dramatic value, both of which appeal to the very discriminating Viennese audiences.

Handel, as an opera-composer, is just becoming popular in Austria. Heretofore it is chiefly as a master of oratorios and orchestral works, that he has been known by Austrians. A movement to produce his operas, started in Germany, has reached Vienna and it is planned to produce all his works of this class within the next year.

Even though this a nation of music lovers, the state operas of Austria continue to show a deficit at the end of each year that has to be met from the funds of the Republic. The government has decided to try the management of a business man in place of a musician, and has appointed Franz Schneiderhan, formerly Austrian Counsul at Breslau to the task of making the operas pay.

Schneiderhan was one time the director of a large hat factory, is a capable business man and also a well known connoisseur of music, which the government thinks an excellent background for their theatre manager. Mr. Schneiderhan will be allowed a free hand in his work and given the best cabinet of musical advisors in the country.

Spectators at Vienna's bathing resorts are experiencing shocks at the appearance of new and elaborate bathing suits on feminine bathers. It has been almost a tradition, and certainly a boast, that Viennese women unlike their sisters elsewhere are good swimmers and when they don a bathing suit it is with the honest intention of entering the water. For this reason the suits of the Vienesse have always been the single one piece variety, a concession to the enjoyment of swimming, if not fashion.

Many women have recently appeared wearing the latest in American bathing suits, with the fancy skirts and cloaks. Now daily more and more women are taking up the demoralizing fashion.

The supposed composer of many of the popular marches of the new Austrian army has been dismissed from his post because it was found that instead of actually composing the works he merely added new words to marches played in the Army many years ago, so long ago that no one remembered them. Zanetti, the musician, is suing for "unjustifiable dismissal' from his position as conductor of the military band.

The most popular march in the army today is the "Vaugoin March" which he brought out a few years ago and dedicated to the Minister of War, Herr Vaugoin. It has been discovered that the march is identical with that of the "Mattonovich March" played forty years ago in the Imperial army and is anonymous. It has been now withdrawn from the list of approved marches as were seven other "Zanetti" marches found to have been copied.

The government owner "Redoutensall" theatre, despite its publicity advantage of being a part of the Imperial palace and the ball room and private theatre of Francis Joseph, has been closed because it could not pay expenses. The management has tried all classes of performances in the theatre and obtained the service of leading artists, but the public has been reticent to trod on the floor where once danced the Royalty and aristocracy of the Empire.

The theatre is an exceptionally fine hall with white and gold walls, on which hang some of the most valuable Gobelins in the country.

Ghost of Carrie Nation Stalks In Hotel Her Axe Made Famous

By International News Service

WICHITA, Kan.—The ghost of Carrie Nation is stalking again through the old Eaton House, once the Hotel Carey, where, in the saloon resplendant with gold paint and mahogany, the famous woman reformer seized an axe and smashed the bar and cut to ribbons a picture of Venus, painted by John Noble, of Wichita, now nationally known artist.

Once more the charges of vice that stirred Mrs. Nation to action have arisen, and frequent arrests have been made on immorality warrants, in the old house. The Eaton houses astonishing vice conditions, according to a report made recently by I. W. Walston, chief of police of Wichita.

The Eaton house is a historic hotel, built in the late eighties by John B. Carey, and was at the time the pride of the state. It was the first large hotel to be built in Wichita, and was, when first built, the stamping grounds of the city's aristocracy. It's bar was the gathering place of many a distinguished company, gathered from throughout the southwest.

In 1900 that Mrs. Nations, stirred to action, gave Kansas one of its first tastes of the reformers that were to make the state the pioneer in the prohibition movement. Mrs. Nations found herself in jail as a result of the attack but it was so successful in arousing public sentiment that she continued.

Now the shadow of ill repute has settled again on the building, and although it has been cleaned out by Chief Walston, it may cause a survey to determine what conditiones of vice there are in the city, and the ghost of Mrs. Nations will walk again in its old haunts.

If football continues to gain in public interest at the same pace it has maintained for several years, the baseball magnates will have to stage their world's series in August.

Another amazing circumstance might have arisen in the democratic primary, but didn't. What, if anything, would have happened should Carmichael's second choice vote been sufficient to have given him more total votes than the other candidates, but could not be counted because he was third place in first choice ballots?

ASSOCIATED PRESS ADDS NEW LAURELS TO ITS WREATH BY STATE SERVICE.

The Associated Press, the world's greatest news-gathering service, won new laurels in its accurate handling of the state election returns. During the long hours of waiting for tabulation of the record vote cast by Alabamians in the democratic primary Tuesday, numerous counts by other agencies and individuals showed conflicting results. Yet, never once during all of that time was the Associated Press wrong.

Between the time the counting began Tuesday late and the result became definitely known Friday morning, one could hear at times that first one candidate then another was ahead. Many reports gained circulation that Carmichael had passed McDowell, or that McDowell had passed Graves, or that Graves' lead over McDowell had been reduced to ten votes. These, and other rumors, went about over the state.

At the same time, the Associated Press was carefully tabulating the actual vote as it was reported. There were no estimates in the "AP" report. Nothing was left to guess work. In a race probably without parallel for closeness, the Associated Press never wavered once from the course it had mapped and only actual tabulations, carefully made, were ever released from this great press organization. As a result every count given by the Associated Press was accurate to the minute and Graves' lead was shown at all times, after the first few hours, in the Associated Press report.

Is it any wonder that the Associated Press continually wins new friends and constantly adds to its prestige as more and more people learn to rely on it absolutely for accuracy?

THE DAILY'S ELECTION SERVICE HAS BEEN SUBJECT OF HIGH PRAISE.

The Daily appreciates the many kind things which have been said about the election service rendered by this newspaper during the hours of tabulating the result. The Daily feels it may say, with pardonable pride, that the service it gave was up-to-the-minute.

To the scores who helped in various ways, The Daily expresses its deepest appreciation. The service could not have been what it was without the co-operation of others. To the election officials The Daily feels particularly grateful. Some of these officials traveled several miles to get to a telephone in order that they might communicate the results of the voting to the waiting thousands gathered at The Daily office.

Other citizens worked for hours in The Daily office, helping with the tabulation, and contributing their bit toward the general good.

Partisanship apparently was forgotten the moment the polls closed and the workers, representing nearly all shades of political opinion, worked like Trojans to get the results tabulated.

The big crowds were good natured throughout and while much "kidding" occured, there was nothing unpleasant done or said to mar the tranquility of the occasion and The Daily was greatly pleased with the manner in which its "party" developed.

The Daily wants the people of Morgan, Lawrence, Limestone and Cullman counties to feel that this newspaper is an institution for service to them. The reporting of the election results was simply an apparent out-cropping of this ever-present desire on the part of The Daily.

TALK OF INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES PROBABLY WILL END IN JUST TALK.

As is frequently the case just after a hard fought political campaign, there is talk of independent candidates for governor and senate. The Daily trusts that this discussion will result only in talk.

The Daily does not feel that Alabama will be benefitted at this time by the period of political turmoil which an independent campaign against the democratic nominees would bring about. The Daily took no part in the senate race, but did in the gubernatorial race. The candidate actively supported by The Daily was defeated. Colonel Bibb Graves was declared the nominee of the democratic party and it seems that should end the matter.

This newspaper will not quarrel with those who insist on exercising their individual prerogative in voting for whom they please. The Daily, for itself, feels, however, that when it participated in the democratic primary it did so with the implied, if not expressed, agreement that the winner of that primary would have The Daily's support. The fact that the greater number of voters did not agree The Daily's view does not relieve this newspaper of its implied obligation. Colonel Bibb Graves, the democratic nominee, has many admirable qualities. He has served his state and country in times of peace and war and his administration of the affairs of the commonwealth for the next four years, The Daily wishes him the best of luck.

A CASE WHERE COURTESY WON PRAISE AND MADE A NEW FRIEND.

A fine example of courtesy by a policeman to a stranger in the city was furnished a few days ago in Florence, and the incident was witnessed by the editor of the Sheffield Standard, who made editorial comment on it and found in it an opportunity for praising a neighboring, and in some respects, a rival town.

The Sheffield editor's comment best tells the story of the incident in question. He said:

Our friendly rivalry with Florence does not blind us to the fact that there's plenty of good in that town. The other day we had to stop our little car on Tennessee street and wait for a visiting tourist to turn a long eight-cylinder sedan in the middle of the block that he might park into the curb on his left. When the sojourner had completed his extraordinary task and stopped his motor, a friendly cop tapped him on the shoulder, smiled into his face and said: "You are our guest, old top, so you won't have to go before the judge and draw a life sentence for what you just did, but next time turn at the block below." Nice spirit that and there was no mistaking the visitor's appreciation.

To this the Florence Times-News adds: "Such action on the part of this officer must necessarily have made a fine impression on the visiting stranger, and is certainly likely to secure the best cooperation in the observance of the future. Besides, it is likely to cause that gentleman to give Florence a fine reputation among his friends and others with whom he comes in contact elsewhere. Lack of courtesy on the part of officers of the law, whether they are dealing with home people or strangers, is inexcusable, and because the officer represents the law, improper treatment causes lack of respect for the law itself, while on the other hand courtesy and firm but polite treatment bring greater respect for the law."

There is much in the above to merit notice and to inspire respect for the guardians of the law who put courtesy above brusqueness in dealing with those who they know to be ignorant of the local traffic laws. As the Florence paper says, the action of the policeman in that city will tend to strengthen, rather than weaken, respect for the traffic laws, and certainly it made a new friend for the city.—Anniston Star.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

"These things observe with care—of whom you speak, to whom you speak, of what and when and where." To begin with the "where." Places are so important that the law recognizes that a place may have a "character." That being true now improper it would be speak profane language in a church. Whether right or wrong, the religionists of the past have held their shrines as sacred. St. Paul all but lost his life when it was alleged that he had profaned the temple in Jerusalem. "When" you speak is of even greater importance than "where" you speak. Would it be wise to talk religion even, to a blacksmith while he was taking a white "heat" out of his furnace? The blacksmith shop is a good place to talk religion, but not while the "smith" is very busy. You hear wise ones promise, "I will ask him about it, IF I GET A CHANCE." Dr. H. R. Thompson, who was one of the successful Y. M. C. A. secretaries used to say, "Don't solicit a man before nine o'clock a. m., wait until the 'grouch' has had time to leave him."

"What" people talk about is of infinite importance. As a person talks so is he. "Words unexpressed, may fall back dead, God Himself can't stop them when they are said." Your words will make your character. It is said some of our best preachers have been converted under the spell of their own oratory. Besides if you say a thing, and keep on saying it, you come to believe its truth. Many untrue philosophies are held as true, simply because of the power of "They Say." What you say about a preacher or a lady, even though they may be as pure and innocent as a new born babe, will defeat their usefulness. Parents will pay good money to have preachers, and then come home and at the dinner table destroy the power of the sermon, by "what" they say. Finally as to "what" we say, God Himself can't stop the force of our words! Statements have been made during the campaign which closed August 10, that will forever influence the lives of the speakers and the lives of those who heard.

"To Whom" you speak! That is of supreme importance. So important is the taking of the initiative as to whom we speak, that well bred men never speak to a lady on the street, before she speaks, unless of course in the case of old acquaintance. To whom shall we speak? First of all to God Himself! They who pray to God shall renew their strength, they shall mount up on wings as eagles—they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint! "Of whom" to speak? Tell of God's claims upon every human being! Tell of Christ's superior claims. If we honor God He will honor us.

SCHOOL ATHLETICS TO BE COMMENDED

A Program That Builds Endurance and Averts Health for Pupils Is Better Than a System That Brings Forth a Few Experts.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PRESIDENT MORGAN of Antioch College says he abolished football to make room for athletics. He did not mean to reflect on the noble game of football, of course. What he had in mind is that it is better to have every student required to take regular exercise, though it may not be spectacular. This, he thinks, is better than developing a small number of super-trained experts.

It is just as important to teach the importance of good health and a strong body as it is to teach literature, and mathematics. I rejoice always when I hear about the efforts of teachers to improve the physical welfare of the pupils.

A short time ago I read the results of the health tests required of all Washington school children. To pass the test the child must have good posture, must know and practice certain health rules, must not be under or over weight, and then must be able to perform certain exercises.

DR. COPELAND.

There are two physical exercise tests. For boys, the first test requires that he execute a 60-yard dash in 8 3-6 seconds make a broad jump of 5 feet 9 inches, and chin the horizontal bar four times. The girls had to throw a basket ball 30 feet, walk the balance beam 24 feet, and run a dash of 50 yards in 8 seconds.

In the second test, the boys had to throw a ball overhead 35 feet, chin the bar six times, and jump 6 feet 6 inches. The girls were required to run a potato race in 20 seconds, throw a ball into a goal two times out of five, and walk the balance beam 24 feet with a bean bag on the head.

The first test was passed by 2,763 boys and girls, and the second one by 1,311. This speaks well for the excellence of the training and particularly for its wide-spread benefits.

It is a great mistake to indulge in exercise which is so strenuous as to tax the heart, and other structures of the body. But everybody, young and old, should exercise moderately and sensibly every single day. Overstrain is dangerous, but systematic exercise is beneficial.

A sudden freakish notion to begin some strenuous system of exercise is particularly dangerous to presons in middle life or past it. Many a man has gone to a premature death because of such an experience.

In all matters relating to health, what we may call the middle route is the safe one to tread. Excesses in eating, in exercising, in sleeping—it matters not what thing we mention—in moderation all such things are good, but in excess they may become harmful, even dangerous.

It is said that the most uncommon kind of sense is common sense, but in health-getting and health keeping certainly common sense must be exercised if you wish to live to a ripe old age.

Answers to Health Queries

A. A. R.—Q.—What would you advise in the case of a boy of 16, who has no appetite, is constantly tired and lacking in pep and whose face is pimply?

A.—His diet and intestinal elimination are probably at fault. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A. E. J. D. Q.—I am a young man of 18 and have been told I have a slight tremor of the heart—is this dangerous? Can it be overcome?

A.—No, the trouble may be due to nervousness. Try to improve your health in general, avoiding undue excitement and over exertion and you will probably notice general improvement.

* * *

N. L. S. Q.—My sister is troubled with pleurisy. Is there a cure, and what would you suggest?

2.—What causes nervous headache which occurs after weak spells?

A.—Strapping the side is often effective. Pleurisy should always have careful medical attention.

2.—First of all, locate the cause of the weak spells. Have your blood pressure taken and then definite treatment can be advised.

THE higher apes are born after seven months of prenatal life, and born covered with hair, of course. All human beings in the seventh month, two months before birth, are thickly covered with a hairy down, which disappears before their birth.

The longer prenatal period of the human race provided two extra months for the development of the superior brain, and also got rid of that hair young apes bring into the world, and never get rid of all of this is shocking to the convinced fundamentalist.

SIR BANIEL HALL, food expert tells the Oxford scientific gathering that the earth is in danger of famine. Each year white races alone need millions of acres more for food production.

Population grows fast But Natures laws will take care of all problems. Henry George pointed out the speed at which a puppy's tail grows. If it kept on growing as fast, each dog would drag a tail many yards long.

Nature stops the growth of the dog's tail when it is long enough. The human race will not grow faster than the earth can feed it.

At present land is inadequately cultivated. The State of Texas could feed the entire population of the globe, under intensive cultivation and have plenty to spare.

SIR DANIEL HALL, says also that lack of food will make prohibition a reality some day. And all men will become vegetarians, because the earth can produce more vegetable than animal food. It takes 1,500,000 acres to supply barley for Great Britain's alcoholic drinks, 4,00,000 acres of vineyards to supply France will continue to have her wine.

Mr. HALEY FISKE says the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, of which he is president, is prepared to spend millions to wipe out city slums and provide decent apartments at low rent.

Mr. Stabler, associated with Mr. Fiske, in the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, has shown that high grade rooms can be rented at $9 a month profitably. Seven million five hundred thousand dollars thus spent by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company earns 8.8 per cent on the investment.

Moire Used for Day and Evening Wear

This Supple Fabric Lends Itself Admirably to All Occasions.

By Annette Bradshaw.

TIME was when the mention of moire brought before our mind's eye a stiff, unyielding fabric, suggesting stays and middle age. This is no more the case, for the newest moire is as soft and pliable as the finest satin, and considered altogether appropriate for any age, from the debutante to her grandmother.

Indeed the present vogue for moire decrees its appearance for any time of day, and we have in the accompanying sketch two smart examples of the versatility of this effective fabric.

At the left is a chic evening frock of cream color moire which is interesting in its smart fabric and also in its use of the bolero jacket treatment. The body of the frock suggests princess lines, and over this is posed the abbreviated colero jacket. This is finished with a scalloped treatment to match the full scalloped panels at the sides of the frock. Tiny beads of deep red add a smart liveliness to the whole.

The frock at the right is a two-piece affair, very much like the sports frocks of less pretentious materials. A demure and very becoming finish is imparted by the deep cuffs and small Dutch collar of cream lace. The dress is of gray-blue moire.

Paris Style Hints

BY ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS.—The old Spanish sailor is coming back—speaking of hats, of course. It is to be seen in modified style at all the smart hat openings now going on in Paris.

Naturally it is a bit made over but has the same stiff brim about two or three inches wide and a supple high crown. Lewis is showing a number of these smart sailors with the brims drooping a bit and with crowns that are very much like a modified beret. One comes in panne velvet trimmed with two long jewelled quills placed on the right side of the crown, one going forward and the other rearward with the tips turned outward.

Caroline Reboux is making the Spanish sailor with a brim and high creased crown. One in a lovely brown felt has a trimming of a triangle of bright red velvet like a small version of a Revolutionist's hat, placed at the left side of the crown toward the front with it base at the top and its tip touching the brim.

The old "Breton" sailor is also being revived with a stiff brim but the crown is a bit smaller. Some are trimmed with shaded cross aigrettes which Americans seem to like so well, perhaps because they are forbidden in the land of liberty.

Everything points to the fact that the high crown will be higher than ever this year but it will be so cleverly shaped that its real heights will be concealed. The softest material will be used. Among the very newest is antelope, a silken felt that is softer than any ever made and a velour satin with silk finish that will be found most adaptable.

Three Killed As Boiler Explodes

The injured: Superintendent Jarrett, severely bruised; H. H. Goodman, leg broken; Andrew Butler, negro, scalded; Roscoe Connelly, negro scalded, Allen Lindsey, negro, injury to head; Henry Williams, back broken; Henry Lee Jackson, leg broken.

Mrs. C. A. Abel who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. Earl Dickerson of Decatur will leave today to visit friends and relatives in the Tri-Cities. She will be gone about two weeks.

Circle No. 1 of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church will meet Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. B. Cassells. There will be no meeting of Circles 2 and 3 this coming week.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

For some time I have been going with a young man and I think a great deal of him as a friend. The trouble is, I am in love with his best chum, but we are both too proud to admit it and he isn't the kind to double cross his pal.

What shall I do?

TROUBLED.

TROUBLED:

Since this young man knows that you regard him in the light of a very good friend, there is no reason why you should feel you are cheating him if you accept the attentions of his pal. You are not engaged to him and consequently it is your privilege to go about with anyone else—or even to fall in love. Don't feel that you must be loyal to a friend to the exclusion of all other happinesses which may be in store for you.

* * *

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Several days ago I had a date with one of my best friends. I broke the date and a few days later he asked me for another. He broke this date.

I have an idea that he is going to make it up with me. Would you advise me to see him again or just ignore his attempts?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES:

Don't you think you are being just a bit haughty and stand offish? If you broke one date with this young man and thought nothing of it, surely you might forgive him for the same "sin."

DON JUAN

Novel by INEZ SABASTIEN

Copyright, 1926, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time. In Rome, the gay Spaniard risks the displeasure of infamous, all-powerful Lucretia Borgia, who loves him, to protect Duke Varanese, whose death the Borgias seek so that Donati, their kinsman, can seize the Duke's lovely daughter, Adriana. Adriana innocently dreams of Juan, her protector—though to him she is just another woman.

Had he thought her fair? Critically she tried to judge her own loveliness and sighed, not realizing that in all Juan's travels his eyes had rested on no one as beautiful as she.

She could not understand the emotion that swept through her when she thought of him.

"Don Juan," she whispered to herself, and felt as if wine flowed through her veins, exhilarating her, making her want to sing, to laugh, and then, oddly enough, to cry a little. How wonderful he had been fighting there in the moonlight with Donati! How handsome he was!

"Later," he had said when she asked if she could not do something to show her gratitude. Later—that might mean that she would see him again quite soon, in a few days perhaps; perhaps—why, it might even be tomorrow!

Dreaming there before her mirror, she planned what she would wear the next day when she went to church in order to look her best just on the chance that she might meet him. Again she studied herself in the candle lighted mirror. Like nine girls out of every ten, she approved of her eyes, rather liked her mouth, but felt quite dissatisfied with her nose, not knowing what a pretty little nose it was.

"Go now or I shall kill myself," she told him.

"Don Juan," she whispered to herself again, and again that exquisite, warm, buoyant feeling surged up through all her being.

A slight noise made her turn. There in the door opening onto the balcony stood Juan.

"If I am late a thousand pardons," he drawled.

For a moment she could not realize what had happened. She thought that she must be imagining his presence. But he moved a little, smiled. At last she found her voice.

"Why are you here—at this hour?" she demanded. And her hands, like frightened birds, flew to her bare throat, tried to cover her scantily clad body.

Annoyed, Juan frowned. Then he lifted his eyebrows inquiringly. Just why was she making all this pretense of surprise at his being here? Was she the sort of girl who turned coy at such a moment? Or could it be that she was unlike the others?

Turning, he closed and barred the windows and door leading to the balcony. Then he crossed the room swiftly to the girl's side. She drew away from him, crying, "Please go!" But he only caught her hand and kissed it, murmuring, "Your little hand is like a trembling dove!"

Adriana was too frightened in that moment even to move. She stood staring at him as his eyes traveled up her bare arm to her shoulder, down over her body, back to her face. Then suddenly he caught her to him and pressed his lips hard against hers.

Wildly she wrenched herself from his grasp and backed away from him to the door. Breathlessly she cried over and over, "Please—please go!" But Juan, smiling, followed her.

"You promised to reward me," he told her. "Are you trying to break that promise because you fear your swordsman friend?"

At first she did not know what he meant. Then, realizing that he thought she was Donati's mistress, she cried frantically: "No! No!" Juan took her in his arms again despite her protests.

"You'll keep your word to me, do you hear?" he exclaimed. "I'm not afraid of your lover."

Adriana felt as if he had torn the heart from her body. He was smiling cruelly now, bending down to kiss her. His lips stilled the protests hers were murmuring. Amusement mingled with the ardor of his love making. Twice in this one night he had foiled Donati!

Adriana's body stiffened in his arms. He relaxed his grasp, interested to see just what she would do next. What a little actress she was!

Adriana's knees shook beneath her, but, stumbling, she reached a table on which lay some trinkets her father had brought her from Venice. Among them was a dagger, a slender, marvelously wrought thing with a jeweled hilt. She caught it up and faced him again.

"Go now or I shall kill myself!" she told him.

Wearily he replied.

"A good piece of acting! You may have rehearsed it many times, but you are too young to make it convincing," he murmured.

And then with a swift, cat-like movement, and even as she raised the dagger and pressed its point against her breast, he had his arms around her. The dagger clattered to the stone floor, and her slender body went limp in his arms.

For a moment he held her, a sardonic smile twisting his lips. Still acting! Well, he would help her to play the farce out. Picking her up he carried her over to a wide divan and laid her on it. The vivid colors of its embroideries made her face seem paler and more ethereal than ever.

Juan bent down and kissed her, then as she did not move he kissed her again. Puzzled, he straightened up and shook his head, bewildered. Why did she not admit that the golden moment had come and cease this absurd pretense?

CHAPTER VI

Juan stood staring down at Adriana, completely at a loss for the first time that he could remember. Was she pretending to faint or was she really unconscious? How exquisite she was, with the colorful embroidery of the wide divan making her lovely face look more than ever like a bit of beautifully carved ivory!

On the low table that stood near by was a marvelously wrought cup from Cellini's studio, a golden shell, resting on the back of a dragon made of gold and colored enamels. He picked it up, thinking to find wine somewhere and force her to drink it. Straightening up to glance about the room, he found himself looking directly at a figure of the Virgin that stood in a little niche in the wall above the divan. Before it burned a taper.

For a moment Juan stood entranced. He felt as if someone had spoken to him, had come between him and his determination to make Adriana carry out her promise as he had understood it. He still believed that she had meant it in that way.

Involuntarily he moved back a step from the divan. He tore his gaze from the Virgin and looked down at Adriana, for suddenly as he looked at the statue he knew that he had been wrong about the girl. Slowly she opened her eyes; it was clear at first she did not remember his coming to her room; then, as memory returned, her eyes grew wide with fear. Wildly she looked around the room as if in search of some means of escaping him; then, fascinated, her eyes came back to him.

Humbly, pleadingly Juan bowed his head before her. He wanted to beg her to forgive him, but his voice failed him. He knew no words that would tell her of his despair at having so completely misunderstood her.

BRITISH "GOBS" PETITION FOR MODERNIZED UNIFORM

By International News Service

LONDON.—British "gobs" are petitioning the Admiralty to modernize their uniforms.

They want a raincoat, which can be worn in place of the present heavy oilskin, better fitting welted boots, a lighter pattern cap, an improved make of collar without points, and the abolition of the lanyard during working hours.

The last request is the outcome of changed conditions of service. The lanyard was a necessity in the days of sailing ships, but the men state that today it gets in their way.

LO, THE POOR INJUN

By WILL GOULD

Bing-Bang! Another redskin bit the dust! This time it's John Levi, the Haskell Indian, who was said to be another Jim Thorpe on the gridiron. Levi, like Thorpe, is a giant in stature, a terrific guy going through a line; kicked like Charley Brickley and could throw a forward pass farther than any man living—but he played baseball like his brother Injun, Jim Thorpe.

Levi is a fair fielder, a demon on the base-paths but can't hit a curve ball to save his wigwam. He was given a trial with the Yankees and then sent to Harrisburg in the New York-Pennsylvania League. A news item in one of the dailies the other day tells of his unconditional release.

Thorpe had the same failing! He couldn't connect with a hook if it meant heaven. And what an egg for any manager to contend with. There was a time, while playing with the Giants, when he had the entire lineup black and blue as the result of "playful" pinches while wrestling with him. Along came one of "them crooshul" series whereby hung a pennant, and McGraw didn't have a pitcher who could go the route. Their wings hung limp from the Big Injun's play. Mac later issued a warning to the rest of the team to keep away from Thorpe under penalty of a big fine.

"Chief" Bender, the cunning Chippewa was the greatest redman that ever wore a B. B. uniform. He ranked on a par with Matty, Miner Brown, Ed Plank and the rest of them. You coulln't rattle the brave. He was calm and collected, had marvelous control, great change of pace and just enough "smoke." He was a hurler! Ask Connie Mack!

'Member Chief Meyers, the Giants Chubby catcher. He had to hit 'em a mile in order to get a double. Chief was blessed with those w.k. piano legs. There have been other Injuns in base-ball. But they came and went. There was Soxalexis, Ben Tincup, Yellowhorse, and Mike Balenti. Soxalexis looked the goods but flirted with Miss Fire water—that did for him. Tincup and Yellowhorse were with the Phillies for a while and were later farmed out to the American Association.

Mike Balenti was given a whirl at the big time, but like Thorpe and Levi, he couldn't hit. There's nothing in that eagle-eye stuff after all.

The Athletics have just acquired the services of a young bucko by the name of Meeker, who bids fair to uphold the splendid tradition of his colorful race. Will he be another Vanishing American?

The L. & N. Y. M. C. A. Independents gridiron cohorts likely will not take the field this year, although much talk has been heard by members of the team, now having played two years. Coast Guard Boat Takes Rum Prize

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. Aug 14.—(AP)—One prisoner, 1600 cases of assorted fine liquors destined for thirsty Jacksonville throats and a motor boat were caught in the coast guard rum net at the mouth of the St. Johns river at daybreak today when the cutter CG 24 captured the speedboat Soxil while attempting to make a landing.

The Soxil manned by the one prisoner was sighted as the coast guard boat started its daily patrol at the mouth of the river. Its pilot bottled up in the mouth of the jetty and no match for the government boat in speed, made no effort to escape when the patrol took up the chase. Its skipper submitted when the CG-24 ranged alongside to begin the search which ended in the discovery of the liquor cargo. The prize was taken inside the jetties and anchored off Laport. The prisoner's name could not be learned.

Pirate Shakeup Throws Scare Into National League Buccaneer Backers

Mighty little activity in a baseball way happened in the three circuits yesterday, but that had very little to do with the action that was noticeable outside of the league.

The National League world today is worried over the status of things in Pirate town with the mighty shakeup that has brought about the release of Carson Bigbee and Babe Adams and waivers asked upon Max Carey one of the best outfielders in organized baseball.

Speaking of the unfortunate occurance, coming at this time of the season when the Pirates must stand their ground or go into the depths of the National the Associated Press made the following report on the situation:

PITTSBURG, Aug. 14.—The unconditional release of Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee and the suspension of Captain Max Carey without pay, indefinitely, was announced tonight at Pittsburg baseball headquarters after a meeting of the players with officials to discuss dissension in the ranks.

Club officers said waivers would be asked on Carey and that he would be shipped immediately to any club claiming him. Pie Traynor was named captain to succeed Carey.

The shakeup followed a movement, led by the three players, to oust from the players' bench Fred Clarke, vice-president of the club, and advisor to Manager McKechnie.

The release of the veterans Adams and Bigbee and the passing of Carey from the Pirate picture was Dreyfuss' reply to charges of some players that two men—Clarke and McKechnie—were bossing the club. The drastic shakeup came after Clarke had announced he would not return to the bench until heavy penalties had been inflicted upon offenders.

Internal strife in the ranks of the players dated from the recent loss of a double header to Boston, the Braves blanking the Pirates twice. Carey, in a statement, said he had heard several players comment adversely on the presence of Clarke on the bench. He approached McKechnie and after telling the manager of the criticisms, he said, McKechnie appeared to favor the captain's stand.

It was decided, Carey said, to put it up to the players. Carey explained that in acting as he did, he, as captain of the team, was spokesman for the dissenters. He said he felt he had the majority. Reports have it that a vote of the players later showed but six men voting against Clarke, the three involved in tonight's action and three others, as yet unnamed.

Clarke, learning of the movement, demanded action. Co-operating in the management of the club with young Dreyfuss, he stood in position to get action. He said he was surprised and pained to learn of any such movement, since it hurt the club's chances to gain a second world's championship and seriously affected the morale of the players. His every suggestion, he said, had been made in good faith, with the idea that it would help win ball games. McKechnie upheld Clarke. He spoke of their friendly relations on the playing field and commended Clarke highly for his assistance in managing a championship nine.

Sports writers, close followers of Pirate fortunes for years, pointed with surprise to the fact that Carey and Adams were named as leaders of the ousting movement. These men developed into big league stars under the watchful eye of Clarke who, while playing-manager of the Pittsburg teams in years gone by, stepped down from his centerfield berth to give Carey his chance in the big show. Adams, likewise, was developed by Clarke and, in the Pirate-Detroit world's series of 1909, it was Clarke who sent the Babe to undying baseball fame by placing him on the mound in the crucial contests. The Babe was given credit for winning the series but in the background stood the man who brought him up and developed him—Clarke.

Carey, in explaining his part in the anti-Clarke movement, made it plain that there was nothing personal, that he had the interest of the club at heart, and that what he sought to do was placate the players who felt the team needed but one boss.

Ideal Refrigeration

Ideal refrigeration demands circulating cold air of PROPER temperature, and of a sufficient degree of moisture to prevent the drying out of the food's fine flavors and natural juices.

A temperature too cold chills out the food's most enjoyable qualities. A temperature too warm promotes the development of bacteria that spoil food and make it unsuitable, if not dangerous, for the family table.

ICE is the ideal method of refrigeration. It delivers a moist air of proper temperature; not too warm, not too cold, not too dry.
